Protects Deer From Hunters

Iowa Farmer Permits Herd Of 27 to Roam in His Field with Cattle

MILFORD, IOWA. — Most Iowa farmers want deer only in their smokehouses hanging on a hook but there's one farmer in Iowa who has put out the welcome mat so his 1,000 acres of land for any deer which care to accept his invitation.

His name is John Bush, 72, who lives 7½ miles northwest of Milford, where a herd of 27 deer mingles with his Angus cattle. Bush, who admires deer, estimates that it costs less than 1¢ cents an acre each season to feed a deer. He claims that the animal is not as destructive to crops as a pheasant but is an asset to a farmer since it helps clear brush.

Deer are widespread in every Iowa county and frequently farmers request Iowa state conservation officials to reduce herds in their communities.

Insist Deer Are Pests

Many farmers insist that deer eat more than their share of corn and soybeans and oftentimes break fences. But Bush, who knew deer even in his native Scotland, staunchly defends them.

"Deer do not take as much corn as pheasants," he explained. "And what they do eat, they do not shell off as wastefully as pheasants. They don't bother the corn when they can get grain. They don't tramp it down or eat the young plants.

"It's hard to say exactly how much corn the deer will eat but they don't do 10 cents worth of damage to an acre of corn. Furthermore, deer eat buck bfush which sheep and cattle won't touch."

The Bush farm has a fine stand of oak timber which offers excellent shelter to the deer.

Trains His Dogs.

When he first moved to his farm Bush saw two deer. He ignored them and gradually the deer became accustomed to the man who seemed so interested in the cattle nearby that he paid no attention to them.

In the winter when the ground was frozen the deer accompanied the cattle to the barnyard for feed. One day Bush's three well-trained collies tried to drive the deer along with the cattle but were perplexed when the strangers adeptly jumped over the fence to keep out of range. So Bush taught his dogs to ignore the deer.

It wasn't long before the pair of deer spread the good word among other deer and soon the deer population on the Bush farm zoomed up to 12.

Disappoint Visitors.

Sight-seeing visitors who come to the Bush farm to see the deer oftentimes are disappointed. Unless the keen-smelling deer are approached from downwind they retreat deeper into the forest. They can be viewed in the evening when they come in with the cattle for food or at odd moments when they bound across a road.

According to Bush the deer provide a homelike atmosphere on his farm. He likes to listen to the clash of antlers when the bucks duel in the spring.

"It sounds like a fight with pitchfork handles when they battle," he said.

Despite the permanently closed season, deer frequently are shot by hunters in this vicinity. The community here has alerted itself and now maintains closer vigilance.

There are between 3,000 and 3,000 deer in Iowa. Most of these trace their ancestry to Ledges park, where a buck and doe named Jack and Babe were introduced in 1923.

Woman Recluse Dies in Home Jammed With Merchandise

LYNBROOK, L. I.—Elise Mestra Wolff, 43, one of two sisters weighing more than 300 pounds, died of a heart attack in a five-room frame house which she shared with her sister, Edith Wolff, 51, since the death of her father nine years ago.

The sisters lived quietly in the kitchen, the only room which was not crammed with litter. Other rooms were jammed with merchandise, mostly unsalable, that they had moved from the dry goods store that their father had operated for many years.

With no electricity, gas or water, each morning the elder sister would go to a garage next to their home and get a bucketful of water. They cooked by a kerosene range and all shopping was done by neighborhood youngsters. The sisters paid cash for everything and, according to police, had $12,000 in the bank.

Cases, boxes and cartons were piled in every room and only a narrow passage was left between the front door and the kitchen at the rear of the two-story house.

In recent years, the younger sister never left the house while the elder emerged only to draw funds from the bank. While the sisters rarely discarded anything, police said an examination did not turn up any unusually valuable possessions.

The surviving sister, who is in good health, said she would continue to live in the house.

Flier Tells Tale Of Sea Flight Fatal to Pilot

Rescued After Nine Days on Rubber Raft

BROWNSVILLE, TEX. — Esteban De Leon, 26-year-old Mexican flier, suffering from nine days at sea on a rubber raft, told how his companion, a pilot, was lost after their plane crashed in the Gulf of Mexico.

The flier related his story as the Panamanian banana freighter Roatan, which rescued him, steamed up the Brownsville ship channel.

De Leon said Neil Womack, 37, Brownsville pilot, was lost from the bobbing, wave-tossed raft sometime during the second night after the crash.

The twin-engined DC3 the men were flying crashed within five minutes of its destination, Ciudad del Carmen, Campeche, Mexico. It had taken off from Brownsville.

The two managed to get onto the rubber raft the plane carried.

De Leon said Womack became despondent and was obsessed with the idea his wife was waiting for him and all he had to do was step from the raft to greet her.

Shouts Name

"Sometime in the night I was awakened when he shouted my name," he said. "But by the time I became fully awake Neil was gone from the raft.

"I shouted his name until I was exhausted, but neither saw nor heard him again."

The Roatan docked in Brownsville harbor and an ambulance took De Leon to Mercy hospital here.

Capt. E. A. Gough, master of the Roatan, said the chief engineer, Maurice Brannon, and Harry Carter, a seaman, sighted De Leon's raft 47 miles north of Frontera, the Roatan's last port of call in Mexico.

De Leon said he had no water during the nine days on the raft, and for food only a bird and two fish he managed to catch.

He prayed to Neuestra Senora del Rosario to either help or destroy him. He said his prayers were rewarded when he sighted the rescue craft.

The engines operated perfectly until they had almost reached their destination, De Leon said.

Engine Catches Fire

"Then suddenly the left engine began to miss, and immediately caught fire.

"I then feathered the propeller at 2,000 feet and I started to go back and threw out some of the cargo because we were losing altitude rapidly.

"The right engine quit running and we started down real fast. We leveled out and stalled about 200 feet above the sea.

"The plane fell in from that altitude.

"I received a few bruises, but Neil was unhurt."

De Leon said he believed the plane remained afloat less than a minute but that in that time the fliers got into rubber life preservers and launched the life raft.

Once, before Womack's disappearance, either a shark or a heavy sea overturned the rubber raft, De Leon said.

"I managed to support Neil, right the raft and drag both of us back out of the sea."

He said that when he sighted the Roatan he was so weak that he could hardly raise his head to look from the raft. The sound of the ship's engines had attracted his attention.

Escaped Convict Returns To Prison After 18 Years

CANON CITY, COLO.—An elderly, well dressed man entered the office of Warden Roy Best at the Colorado penitentiary and surrendered himself after an absence of 18 years.

Identifying himself as C. E. O'Dunne, 58, he told Best:

"I escaped from here in 1929. I want to turn myself in and clear my conscience. I've had a clean record since I got away but I've been all over the country and I've always been afraid I'd be picked up."

The warden checked the records and found that O'Dunne had walked away from a prison farm November 23, 1929. He was received August 20, 1929, from Denver to serve a one and a half to three years forgery sentence.

Best said O'Dunne would not be given additional punishment for the escape.

Chicago Modernizes Police Force; Dobbin Gets Fired

CHICAGO.—Loop traffic officers began taking lessons on their new three-wheel motorcycle mounts as the police department disposed of 29 of its 40 horses.

Policeman Michael J. Dineen gave $25 for the 24-year-old horse he has ridden in the loop for 20 years. He plans to retire the animal to a farm.

Policeman Frank Wolf obtained his police mount for $151 and Policeman Jerry Beeson gave $128 for his.

Eleven remaining horses are expected to be sold to the Illinois national guard's Black Horse troop, a Chicago unit.

City Investigates 'Puppy Feast' of College Fraternity

Three Fraternity Members Asked to Explain Initiation Week

LOS ANGELES.—The city attorney here ordered the president of Beta Theta Pi fraternity and two pledges to explain their sides to charges that a "hell week" initiation necessitated the slaying and eating of a cocker spaniel puppy.

The social fraternity on the campus of University of California at Los Angeles denied the charges made by one pledge who resigned because he was "revolted" by the asserted execution of a six-month-old puppy obtained from the Santa Monica city pound.

Jim Higson, fraternity president, said he knew nothing of the asserted killing and "puppy feast."

John G. Hallock, 24-year-old former air force sergeant who was questioned by the city attorney's office after a "tip" from an unidentified person, said the dog was killed on orders from an older member to bring a "freshly killed dog" for dinner.

The fraternity denied any such instructions but admitted a cocker spaniel female puppy was bought from the Santa Monica pound for a mascot and said that it had run away.

The boys brought the puppy to the house and it was jumping around licking their hands, Hallock said.

"I guess it was glad to get out of the pound. Richard Roberts told me they hated to go through with their orders but decided the best way would be to hit it over the head.

"They went to the grocery store and bought some milk and while the dog was drinking it they killed it. It was alive after the first blow so they hit it a couple more times," Hallock said.

He admitted he had not seen the execution but had seen the dog's body carried into the basement. He said he did not know whether it actually had been eaten because he left the house then and did not return.

Jersey Tenants Force Eviction of Landlord

ORANGE, N. J.—Here's one instance where history reversed itself.

Gerald Dascher announced in Essex county court that since he can't evict the tenants in his three-family house, he and his wife are moving out.

Dascher complained that the tenants use foul language and that in the midst of a cold wave they damaged his furnace.

"At last," he told the court, "I have found the solution to all my problems. I'm moving out."
